

Memo

To: Professor Emily Gorn

From: Wonui Kim

Date: June 4th, 2026

Subject: Composition and Revision Direction of Application Documents for Red Bull New York Academy Youth Programs Marketing Internship

Purpose

This memo is to explain how I revised and organized my resume and application letter, assuming that I am applying for Red Bull New York Academy's 2026 Summer Youth Programs Marketing Internship. First, I will analyze the company and job advertisement, and based on that analysis, I will explain what content I emphasized and how I adjusted the wording.

Company and Job Advertisement Analysis

Red Bull New York is a Major League Soccer club that also operates youth soccer development programs. Therefore, I judged that this position is not simply a marketing internship, but a job that requires an understanding of the sports industry, youth programs, communication toward parents and players, and on-site event operations.

The tasks that the job advertisement emphasized the most were content creation and storytelling, campaign planning and execution, brand message management, digital marketing performance analysis, event marketing, and on-site activation. As qualifications, attention to detail, creativity, understanding of social media, use of spreadsheets and data, writing ability, and the ability to handle several tasks at the same time in a fast environment were presented.

Accordingly, I organized the documents around fitness brand research experience, content creation experience, student and Gen Z project experience, and responsibility and execution ability strengthened through Marine Corps service, rather than only the point that I am an economics major student.

Resume Revision Direction

I organized the resume in a combination format that shows both skills and experience together, instead of simply listing work history. This is because I am close to graduation and do not have a long-term career, but I have several types of highly related experience, and Chapter 18 of the textbook also recommends the combination format for graduating students.

Especially, I moved the IC and SpoAny experience to the top and gave them more space. IC is a creative project organization of about 30 people that produces content such as video, design, and writing, and this is directly connected to content creation and storytelling work, which the job ad listed first. For example, as part of IC, I organized a skydiving experience for regular people, filmed the entire process, and built a website to document all of our challenges as a portfolio. This is the same type of content capture and event activation that the job ad describes.

SpoAny experience is related to market research, competitor analysis, price and promotion comparison, and member experience analysis of a fitness brand. SpoAny sells various fitness products and memberships, so working with them taught me how a brand builds reasons for customers to sign up and stay. I saw this as the same marketing thinking that Red Bull uses to sell its products and grow its programs.

After peer review, my classmates said my bullet points explained duties more than results. So I changed many bullets to show results and added real numbers where I had them, such as 20+ finished challenges, 5 projects, more than 20,000 total content views, 300 Instagram followers, and the 5 competitor gyms I researched. I did not add numbers I cannot prove, for the same reason about reference checks.

For Marine Corps service, I did not use military terms as they are, but translated them into business language that a company can easily understand, such as responsibility, meeting deadlines, teamwork, and execution ability under pressure. I kept the actual title as “Overseas Manager,” because as the textbook warns, exaggerating titles can be revealed in reference checks or interviews.

Application Letter Writing Direction

I organized the application letter in the AIDA structure. In the first paragraph, I stated the position I am applying for and connected my background immediately to attract attention, and I also revealed where I saw the posting. The second paragraph showed my understanding of fitness brands and customer participation through SpoAny experience, and the third paragraph showed content creation, execution ability, and responsibility through IC and Marine Corps experience. In the last paragraph, I politely requested an interview opportunity.

After peer review, I also changed weak phrases like “I have worked with” into stronger verbs such as “researched” and “produced,” and I made the last paragraph more confident by clearly showing my interest in an interview instead of only thanking the reader.

For the writing style, I avoided exaggeration and wrote politely but directly. I reflected the keywords of the job ad, but did not copy the wording as it is, because Section 18.3.1 of the textbook warns that recruiters can recognize “AI-like expressions or writing that follows the job ad exactly.”

Format and Conclusion

I made both the resume and application letter fit into one page. The resume uses only basic sections and bullet points without tables or images, so it is easy for an ATS to read and easy for people to quickly scan. The application letter followed a general English business letter format. The core is to persuasively show that I am an applicant who has the content creation, marketing research, event-centered thinking, responsibility, and execution ability needed for this position.

Wonui Kim
State College, PA 16801
646-771-9980
kimwonui2001@gmail.com

May 31, 2026

Red Bull New York Academy

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying after seeing the 2026 Summer Youth Programs Marketing Internship posting on Red Bull's careers page. I am majoring in Economics at Pennsylvania State University and am expected to graduate in Fall 2026. I have Marine Corps service experience and operate a small creative studio. The content creation, campaign execution, and event activation emphasized by this internship are connected to the work I already do, so I decided to apply.

I worked with SpoAny, a major fitness brand in Korea, and researched 5 competitor gyms within a 2km radius of one location, comparing their prices, promotions, facilities, crowd density, gender and age ratios, and equipment usage, and organizing them into a form that the company can use right away. Through this process, I learned that marketing is less about making advertisements and more about creating reasons for people to come and stay. I think this is directly connected to Red Bull's task of increasing youth program participation.

Also, I lead a studio of about 30 people and create video, design, and written content for students and Gen Z. So far we have finished more than 20 challenges and 5 projects, and our content has passed 20,000 total views on YouTube and Instagram. One of these was organizing a skydiving experience for regular people, filming the whole process, and building a website to document it. Planning shoots, keeping deadlines, and completing content have become familiar to me. In Marine Corps service, I learned the attitude of taking care of details and finishing the work I am responsible for until the end. I understand that this internship is for academic credit, and if necessary, I will also submit proof of academic credit.

I would like to have an opportunity to speak directly about how my experience in fitness brand research, content creation, and event-centered projects can help the Youth Programs marketing team. I believe I can contribute from the beginning, and I look forward to hearing from you. Thank you for reviewing my application.

Sincerely,

Wonui Kim

Wonui Kim

State College, PA 16801 | 646-771-9980 | kimwonui2001@gmail.com

Professional Summary

Economics major at Pennsylvania State University (expected graduation Fall 2026) and Marine Corps veteran. Operate a creative studio of about 30 people and support overseas marketing for a major Korean fitness brand. Strong in content creation, competitor research, and turning customer insight into campaign and event ideas. Comfortable with digital tools, spreadsheets, and Korean-English communication. Seeking to contribute to content creation, campaign execution, and event activation in Red Bull New York's Youth Programs Marketing.

Education

The Pennsylvania State University — University Park, PA Expected Graduation: Fall 2026
B.A. in Economics

Relevant Coursework: Business Writing, Marketing Research Projects, International Economics, Statistics, Media and Society

Relevant Experience

IC (Infinite Challenge) — Creative Venture Studio | Founder & Lead Dec. 2025–Present

- Lead a studio of about 30 people and oversee video, design, and written content creation, while growing it into a formal company; have finished 20+ challenges and 5 projects so far.
- Plan and produce content for students and Gen Z — including a skydiving event for regular people, filmed and documented through a website portfolio — reaching 20,000 total views on YouTube and Instagram and 300 Instagram followers.
- Coordinate roles in the planning, production, and delivery stages and move several projects forward according to schedule.

SpoAny — Major Korean Fitness Brand | Overseas Manager (Freelance) | Remote May 2025–Present

- Researched 5 competitor fitness centers within a 2km radius of one location — their prices, promotions, facilities, crowd density by floor area, gender and age ratios, and equipment usage — and organized them so they can be used for business decision-making.
- Compare Korean and U.S. fitness markets and point out factors that influence new sign-ups and member retention.
- Support overseas communication between the Korean headquarters and the U.S. side.

Independent App & Product Projects | State College, PA 2025–Present

- Built and shipped a Korean-English translation iOS keyboard app, KeyGlo, single-handedly from planning and design to development; now improving it with feedback from 7 beta testers.
- Prototyped student app concepts focused on events, community, and translation in Figma.

Republic of Korea Marine Corps | Sergeant (Honorable Discharge) Mar. 2023 – Sep. 2024 (18 months)

- Served 18 months in the 2nd Marine Division in both reconnaissance and infantry roles; honorably discharged at the rank of Sergeant after completing the full term of service.

- Carried out assigned duties accurately in a high-responsibility, team-based environment, even under deadlines and pressure.

Key Projects

- Fitness Market Competitive Analysis — Researched local fitness centers' prices, promotions, facilities, and peak-time people, and organized them into practical proposals to improve member experience.
- Student Event and Community Platform Concept — Designed an event discovery and matching service centered on user verification, ratings, and community trust.

Skills

Content creation (video, graphics, writing) | Campaign planning | Event promotion | Social media understanding | Competitor and market research | Spreadsheets and data | Figma | Korean-English communication

2026 Internship, Summer – Youth Programs Marketing

Organization: Red Bull New York Academy

Location: Harrison, United States

Job Category: Sports and Performance – Intern

Employment Type: Temporary – Unpaid, for-credit internship only (proof of credit required)

Official Posting:

<https://jobs.redbull.com/us-en/harrison-2026-internship-summer-youth-programs-marketing-prv-ref29680c>

About the Organization

Red Bull New York (“RBNY”) are one of 30 teams in Major League Soccer (MLS) and one of the league’s ten original charter clubs. Founded in 1996, RBNY has competed in MLS since its inception. RBNY’s First Team plays its home matches at Sports Illustrated Stadium in Harrison, New Jersey and its Second Team plays its home matches at Montclair State University. RBNY are owned by the Austrian beverage company Red Bull GmbH, after which the team is named. RBNY’s First Team is a three-time MLS Supporters’ Shield winner and a two-time Conference Champion, while the Second Team is the 2025 MLS NEXT Pro Champion. RBNY also operates one of the nation’s premier youth soccer development programs, spanning local partnerships across New York and New Jersey. RBNY’s Academy is ranked among the top development organizations in the country.

Purpose of this Internship

The Summer 2026 Marketing Internship offers hands-on experience in brand strategy, content creation, and campaign execution that powers marketing and growth within the Red Bull New York Youth Programs. This internship is designed for individuals interested in learning how marketing drives participation, engagement, and growth across a large-scale youth sports organization. Additionally, individuals will learn how marketing functions operationally – connecting campaigns, technology, and program delivery to drive participation and revenue.

The internship runs from May 20th through the end of July and provides exposure to multiple areas of the business, including program marketing systems, campaign execution, digital communications, partnerships, and event promotion. The intern will typically be in-person up to three days per week, with occasional evening or weekend availability required to support events and on-site content capture.

This is an unpaid, for-credit internship only (proof that you will receive credit is required).

Responsibilities

- Content Creation & Storytelling – Plan, capture, and develop engaging content (photo, video, and written) that highlights programs, players, and events across digital platforms.
- Campaign Planning & Execution – Assist in building and executing marketing campaigns for camps, clinics, and player pathway programs, including email, social media, and on-site activations.
- Brand & Messaging Strategy – Learn how a professional sports organization communicates its value to parents, players, and clubs, and how consistent messaging supports growth.

- Digital Marketing & Performance Tracking – Analyze campaign performance (email metrics, social engagement, registrations) and apply insights to improve results.
- Event Marketing & Activation – Support on-site marketing at events, including signage, promotions, content capture, and fan/parent engagement.
- Cross-Department Collaboration – Work with operations, partnerships, and player development teams to align marketing with program delivery and business objectives.
- Professional Development – Build communication, creativity, accountability, and execution skills in a fast-paced, team-oriented environment.
- Onboarding within Red Bull New York Youth Programs, weekly in-person check-ins, hands-on project ownership (including one program/location campaign end-to-end with measurable impact on registration growth), and a final presentation.

Key Performance Indicators (KPIs)

- Content output and quality (photo, video, email, and social assets).
- Campaign execution accuracy and timeliness (email sends, registration launches, updates).
- Event branding standards and partnership activation deliverables.
- Contribution to program registration and campaign performance.
- Accuracy and organization of marketing assets, calendars, and reporting dashboards.

Your Areas of Knowledge and Expertise

- Interested in marketing, business operations, analytics, or sports management.
- Strong attention to detail and organizational skills.
- Strong creativity and ability to develop engaging content ideas.
- Comfortable creating content using digital tools.
- Understanding of social media platforms and what drives engagement.
- Comfortable working with spreadsheets and data.
- Ability to manage multiple tasks and meet deadlines in a fast-paced environment.
- Strong written communication skills for drafting emails, social posts, and program messaging.

Additional Information

Because of the cyclical nature of the entertainment industry, assigned hours may vary to reflect business needs (includes nights and weekends). Red Bull New York is an equal opportunity employer and will not discriminate against any applicant on the basis of any classification protected by law.

Source: Red Bull Jobs (United States). Reproduced for the ENGL 202D application-materials assignment.

Generic Resume

Wonui Kim

State College, PA 16801 | 646-771-9980 | kimwonui2001@gmail.com

Professional Summary

Economics major at Pennsylvania State University (expected graduation Fall 2026) and Marine Corps veteran. Experienced in business communication, fitness industry research, content creation, and early-stage product planning. Comfortable across both Korean and U.S. business environments, with project experience connecting market research to execution.

Education

The Pennsylvania State University — University Park, PA Expected Graduation: Fall 2026
B.A. in Economics

Relevant Coursework: Economics, Business Writing, International Economics, Statistics, Communication

Experience and Activities

IC (Infinite Challenge) — Creative Venture Studio | Founder & Lead Dec. 2025–Present

- Lead a studio of about 30 people and carry out video, design, and content creation projects.
- Plan projects for students and Gen Z and execute them by dividing team member roles.
- Develop ideas related to digital products, content, and student communities.

SpoAny — Major Korean Fitness Brand | Overseas Manager (Freelance) | Remote May 2025–Present

- Support overseas business communication and market research.
- Research the fitness market, competitors, prices, promotions, and customer experience.
- Compare differences between Korean and U.S. fitness markets and customer expectations.

Independent App & Product Projects | State College, PA 2025–Present

- Built and shipped a Korean-English translation keyboard app, KeyGlo, single-handedly from planning to release.
- Organized early app ideas centered on events, community, and translation through Figma and planning documents.

Republic of Korea Marine Corps | Sergeant (Honorable Discharge) Mar. 2023 – Sep. 2024 (18 months)

- Served 18 months in the 2nd Marine Division in both reconnaissance and infantry roles; honorably discharged at the rank of Sergeant after completing the full term of service.
- Developed the habit of carrying out assigned work to the end, even under pressure, in an environment requiring responsibility and teamwork.

Key Projects

- Fitness Market Research — Compared local fitness centers' prices, promotions, facilities, and customer experience, and organized them into practical insights.
- Student Community App Concept — Planned a campus platform centered on events, verification, ratings, and community trust.

- KeyGlo (AI Translation Keyboard) — Planned and developed a translation keyboard for the convenience of international students and Korean-English users.

Skills

Business communication | Market research | Competitor analysis | Content creation | Project planning | Team leadership | Figma | Spreadsheets | Korean-English communication

Languages

Korean (Native) | English (Professional working level)